Technical support engineer who builds the systems he supports, resolving hardware, software, and account issues for non-technical users.

// EVIDENCE

- Serve as the sole technical support contact for client businesses, resolving hardware, software, and account issues for non-technical users by email and phone, keeping live client systems, including point of sale software in daily use at a retail bakery, running with no support team behind the role.
- Set up user accounts, access, and onboarding documentation for the client platforms I host.
- Resolve hardware and software issues across Windows and Linux systems for non-technical client users.
- Troubleshoot production issues on live client systems, including point-of-sale software in daily use at a retail bakery.
- Diagnose API, database, and hosting problems using logs, browser developer tools, SQL queries, and cURL on live client systems, keeping hosted applications and point of sale software in daily production use.
- Write onboarding documentation and step-by-step guides that reduce repeat support questions.
